ADI [1] and Alzheimer's Australia will host the 30th International Conference of Alzheimer's Disease International from 15 to 18 April 2015 in Perth, Australia.

Hundreds of delegates including people with dementia, professional and family carers, researchers, clinicians, scientists and staff and volunteers of national Alzheimer associations from around the world will exchange knowledge and experiences and take part in ground-breaking discussions.

The conference theme this year is "Care, Cure and the Dementia Experience - A Global Challenge". The conference will feature plenary sessions on research, advocacy and care; and will include keynote lectures [2] from renowned speakers.

In addition to the core programme of the conference, supporters of the NCD Alliance have also organised two sessions entitles The NCD Dialogues, which will take place on Thursday 16th March. These will provide an open environment for dynamic and interactive discussions on two key issues: the shared risk factors and solutions for dementia and other NCDs, and the role of workplaces in the response to dementia and NCDs.
