Women Deliver invites you to a high-level event during the 70th World Health Assembly to explore the critical role of establishing policy and stepping up advocacy to curb the rising rate of diabetes in pregnancy.

Though evidence shows a need for intervention, diabetes in pregnancy remains overlooked as an important maternal, newborn, and child health (MNCH) priority. Diabetes in pregnancy affects 1 in 6 births. If we are to tackle maternal morbidity and mortality in low- and middle-income countries, we must address diabetes in pregnancy.

Join esteemed cross-sector panelists and moderator Dr. France Donnay at World Health Assembly to discuss how advocates and policymakers can fuel action.
